WHEREAS, In both programs, the city pays retailers an average annual stipend ranging from $700 to $1,400 (numbers from 2016); and

WHEREAS, A window sign or sticker is placed in retail storefront to let people know their bathrooms are open to the public; and

WHEREAS, The UK has the Great British Toilet Map that indicates the retailers that have opened up their bathrooms to the public, the amenities the bathroom has and the hours of operations; and

WHEREAS, Restaurants that are using our public realm over a certain square footage may consider opening up their bathrooms to the public in recognition that they are profiting from using the public realm for additional seating; and

WHEREAS, Restaurants that are using a smaller footprint may be provided with a voluntary program where their fee would be reduced if they open up their bathrooms to the public; and
